

Session 3: Water Resources as a Driving Force of Social Change

Water is circulating resources on a global scale. If all countries cooperate and work well together in water management, water resources is well-sustainable system. In this session, we discuss the interaction among water circulation which includes extreme event (e.g. drought, flood, typhoon, etc.), water resources and human society.